

First ever student bursary scheme launched by BOHS

BOHS is delighted to announce the launch of its first ever bursary scheme, for students wanting to gain a higher education qualification in Occupational Hygiene.

- Up to five bursaries offered every year
- Each one up to £4,000 towards the payment of academic fees
- Open to any student registered on, or offered a place on, any UK-based post-graduate course approved by the Faculty of Occupational Hygiene
- Closing date for the first round of applications is 31st July 2006

There is no catch! BOHS is a registered charity, with a simple aim: to help to reduce work-related ill-health, and this bursary scheme is one of a number of initiatives designed to promote education and research in occupational hygiene.

For full details of the scheme, including a complete list of eligible courses and how to apply, visit the 'Education and Training' section of the BOHS website on www.bohs.org.
